

FINAL SEQUESTRATION REPORT
FOR FISCAL YEAR 1991

A CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE
REPORT TO THE CONGRESS AND THE OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET

November 6, 1990

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 amended the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 to add new enforcement mechanisms for entitlement spending, receipts, and discretionary spending over the next five years. A pay-as-you-go procedure for fiscal years 1992 through 1995 will ensure that new entitlement and receipt legislation does not increase the deficit. Dollar limits are placed on defense, international, and domestic discretionary appropriations for 1991 through 1993, and on total discretionary appropriations for 1994 and 1995. Any overage will be eliminated through across-the-board cuts.

The existing sequestration to enforce maximum deficit amounts has been extended through 1995, but the President is required to adjust these amounts for revised economic and technical assumptions when submitting the budget for fiscal years 1992 and 1993. The President also has the option to make similar adjustments to the targets in the budgets for 1994 and 1995. Compliance with the discretionary spending limits and the pay-as-you-go requirements in 1992 and 1993 will assure that there will be no need for overall sequestration to achieve the maximum deficit amounts in those years. The same will be true in 1994 and 1995 if the President opts to adjust the maximum deficit amounts in the budgets for those years.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 rescinded the sequestration order for fiscal year 1991 issued by the President on October 15, 1990. The only sequestration that now applies to 1991 is to eliminate any breach in the limits for defense, international, or domestic discretionary appropriations. The new enforcement procedures require the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) to issue an estimate of the budget authority and outlays provided by a discretionary appropriation as soon as practicable after the Congress completes action on the bill. The law also requires CBO to issue a final sequestration report 10 days after the end of a Congressional session. If the budget authority or outlays provided for one or more categories of discretionary spending breaches the applicable limits, the report must set forth estimates of the amount of budgetary resources to be sequestered to eliminate the breach.

Table 1 presents CBO's estimates of the amount of discretionary new budget authority and total outlays for fiscal year 1991 provided by each of the 13 appropriation bills cleared by the Congress. The amounts provided are divided among the defense, international, and domestic discretionary categories using the listing of accounts contained in the joint explanatory statement accompanying the 1990 reconciliation bill.

Table 2 shows CBO's estimates of the applicable discretionary spending limits. The dollar amounts have been adjusted for Internal Revenue Service funding, debt forgiveness, and emergency appropriations for Operation Desert Shield, as provided in Section 251(b) of the amended Balanced Budget Act.

Table 2 also compares the actual appropriations with the adjusted spending limits. Defense and domestic discretionary spending are below their respective limits. International discretionary appropriations, however, breach the limits by $395 million in budget authority and $8 million in outlays. According to the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, the overages in the international category stem from a drafting error in the foreign operations appropriation bill. The language of the conference agreement for the foreign military financing account does not correspond to the intended amount shown in the comparative statement of budget authority (as provided to CBO by the Appropriations Committees).

The total amount of new discretionary budget authority provided in the international category is $20,495 million. The corresponding limit is $20,100 million. Eliminating the $395 million breach requires an across-the-board reduction of 1.9 percent in budget authority and other discretionary budgetary resources. A 1.9 percent reduction will cut outlays by $195 million, which will more than eliminate the outlay breach of $8 million. The appendix provides a list of the sequestration base and reductions for international discretionary spending by agency, budget account, and type of spending authority.

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is required to make its own estimates of discretionary appropriations for fiscal year 1991 and its own determination of any breaches in the spending limits. The OMB report is due 15 days after the end of the Congressional session. On the same day, if OMB finds a breach in the spending limits for any category, the President will issue a sequestration order imposing across-the-board cuts in that category sufficient to bring spending down to the established limits.

NOTES: Amounts shown here represent the 1991 regular appropriation bill, 1991 appropriations advanced in previous years, and outlays from prior-year appropriations.

Detail may not add to totals because of rounding.

- a. Includes $1,000 million in budget authority and $1,164 million in outlays for Operation Desert Shield (including $388 million in prior-year outlays).
- b. Includes $100 million in outlays for debt forgiveness for Egypt and Poland and $7 million in prior-year outlays for Operation Desert Shield. The CBO estimate for the foreign operations appropriation bill (H.R. 5114) exceeds the amount in the comparative statement of budget authority provided to CBO by $403.5 million in budget authority and $15.7 million in outlays. According to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, the difference is the result of a drafting error in the conference agreement for the foreign military financing account.
- c. Includes $191 million in budget authority and $183 million in outlays for Internal Revenue Service funding above the June 1990 baseline.
